Centre for Army LeadershipInformation / Reference

The Army Leadership Doctrine codifies the British Army's thinking on leadership, drawing together ideas, principles and methods that have been proven to work throughout history. The doctrine should be used as a reference and links made to both the content of the Leadership Doctrine and the Army Leadership Code for all the scenarios

For more information on the CAL and other products, please visit the army.mod.uk/leadership using the QR Code below or the CAL's AKX page.

The CAL would like to thank the Communication and Applied Behavioural Science Department and the Multi-Media Design Centre (MMDC) at RMAS also 1MI Bn and the Intelligence Corps for their partnership in this project.

Centre for Army LeadershipInstructions for use / Disclaimer

This deck of cards is designed to generate discussion within ranks on leader and leadership scenarios. They are to assist and prompt a leader with delivering a quick and responsive leadership session.

They can be used formally in a structured leadership development package or informally as a tool to get individuals discussing leadership, for example at the back of the ranges.

All the scenarios within are based upon real examples experienced by JNCOs, SNCOs and Junior Officers in the Army but are not based on any specific individual.

For further information, direction or advice, please look at the CAL's AKX site. If you have examples on how you are using the cards, please inform the CAL so others can benefit.
